people say are not, in fact, true. Could be anyone from multiple dimensions, but specifically from our own, with strong negative emotions. We have a built-in technique, so our brain fabricates this reality for us. We don't need to hear reality from that point of view, but the brain plays back what it thinks we should be hearing, drawing inferences to create a reality, and we think we're hearing it in real time. It is as if we are hearing something take place in our own time and place, but it is not really happening, except in our minds, in this "virtual" reality. Another example is when we see an object that was created artificially in a lab, for example, and we know it's been manufactured, but we see it's a perfect duplicate, as if we are seeing a plausible fable. Seeing something synthetic in real time, or seeing it in our minds as a perfect duplicate, triggers an emotional response. 6) Intuitive Processing — We can still process things intuitively. We can do mathematics, like the six-sider, or other types of mathematical equations, and can do it at near or super-human levels. We can also process certain mathematical formulae at a far deeper level, with meditation, or have a premonition as to the outcome of something we are about to do. We also have strong intuitive powers of our mind, as in the ability to remember events long after the first actual experience of them. 7) Stare at a White Dot — We can stare into the distance for hours, seeing a star, a sun, or a planet, or a serene part of nature. We can experience an object in a time-lapse, moving from the distant past to the distant future. We can stare at the sun, and have visions of the future as imagined by our future selves. 8) Break Free of the Matrix — We can break free of our own matrix. We can break away from the limitations of our own thinking, and break our fallibility. We can see through to the truth of things. We see past the veil of illusions. We can see events from the time they exist, and follow them until they have had their influence on us. We can see through the illusions, fallacies, and everything else. We can actually SEE what is, and what is not, and what is going to happen, and what has not happened

Josh MacPhee, Potomac's ace, brings a little more than 31 years of age to the mound, but his game is fresh. VAN HORNE Josh MacPhee probably had the easiest route to his second victory of the season, and he showed by capping it with his tongue out of the corner of his mouth. That earned him a taste of extra lime juice after the game, and the consumption of it may be the only thing that is going to happen that will relieve the groggy feeling from which MacPhee has spent the last six days. Along with having an excellent first six innings against RPI (records: 7-6, 3-3), MacPhee earned a victory on a day that belonged to Potomac pitcher Jordan Gabel. He struck out six batters and walked only two in a dominating performance. "He was pretty good today," MacPhee said. "He was as good as I've seen him." Gabel threw a complete game for the second consecutive night and, with a day off tomorrow, will try to become the first member of the Princeton Invitational Tournament to toss a complete-game shutout. MacPhee, on the other hand, can only bask in his own success. Although he faced the minimum number of batters for the first time this season, he finished the day striking out six and walking only three. He retired the first 14 batters he faced and served up only the fourth home run he has allowed this season, a solo shot by visiting Beloit. MacPhee left the game in the fourth inning with the Tigers leading 4-
